This volume grew out of papers and discussions produced in the Harvard Medical Anthropology Program's Friday Morning Seminar. The Friday Morning Seminar is generously supported by a National Research Scientist Award from the National Institute of Mental Health (MH 18006). The coeditors thank the other faculty and fellows who helped organize the 1999–2001 seminars—Mary-Jo DelVecchio Good, Amaro Laria, and Sandra T. Hyde—and the presenters and participants in the seminar for their insightful contributions. We also thank members of Harvard's Departments of Anthropology and Social Medicine and members of the Program in Science, Technology, and Society at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. We are grateful to Ian Whitmarsh, William Garriott, and Peter Locke for their invaluable help with research and writing, and to Margaret L. McCool and Marilyn Goodrich for their assistance. Harvard's Michael Crichton Fund and Princeton's Committee on Research in the Humanities and Social Sciences supported the preparation of this volume. João Biehl is thankful for the support of the School of Historical Studies of the Institute for Advanced Study. We also thank the two anonymous reviewers for the University of California Press for their constructive comments and Stan Holwitz and Tanya Luhrman for supporting this project.
